MAJOR-GENERAL SIT GEORGE WHITE tells

an important prisoner from the central gaol

at Mandalay to some outlying prison

When the escort returned to Mandalay the non-commissioned officer was asked to produce the receipt for the body of the prisoner. He light-heartedly replied, "I have not got the receipt; the prisoner ran away." When asked for explanations of the laxity of his watch, he said, "We could not help it; the prisoner ran away while we were asleep." Presumably the answers of the officers re sponsible for the non-detection of ALVES's defalcations during the space of four years and for allowing him to escape after suspicion had been aroused will give some similar explanation. The defaulter has at last been contagious, or that they are due to the presence a new record. Merrythought disposing of it in the Bridge and a sple race ensued. Merry arrested and was formally charged at the Police Court yesterday. The case will be gone into next week and the public will then have the opportunity of following the evidonce for themselves and forming their own opinion as to how the whole thing happened, by the patient once in two weeks. In a small place like this, where every one knows every one else moving in his own social sphere, it may be taken for granted that all the members of the Commission are nessed on Thursday. Thanks to an absence on terms of more or less personal intimacy of rain and the presence of a drying breeze the with the principal officers affected by this this advantage naturally had a marked effect painful matter, and it is no aspersion on them | upon the times recorded, which certainly were of to suggest that they will find it difficult quite a noteworthy character. The recent attempts to use peat in smelting iron and nuder locomotive bailers have been natacally looked upon with great interest in Ir-land which country has practically no coal while oneseventh of its whole surface-or 3,000,000 acres -consists of peat bog. Dr. Emerson Roynolds, "ho has given much time to the study of the subject, states that peat compares very unfavourably with coal in many ways. . It is five times as balky as coal, it contains from 15 to 25 per cent. of water, and seldom less than 10 per cent. of ash, and; bulk for bulk, its thermal value is only one-thirteenth of that of coal. The fresh peat, moreover, conmins 35 or 40 per cont. of moisture, making necessary considerable expense for drying. During la coal famine some 20 years ago, Dr. Revnolds reposed converting the undried peat into cas. and this was successfully done in the shops of an Irish railway, the efficiency of a ton of peat used in this way for working up scrap iron being 60 per cent. of that of a ton of coal used as gas by he same method. Since then the extraction of unmonia from gasified peat makes this process more practicable. A promising new suggestion is that peat shall be used in making water gas. which can be conveniently supplied for domestic and industrial purposes.

UNRIVALLED REVEDY. Siemason & Co " B4, Commercial Road, Pookham, July 13, Done Bir .- I am a poor hand at expressing my foolings, but I should like to thank you, Your senges have done wonders in relieving my terrible cough. Since I had the operation of ' l'rachestorny Jardine, Matheson & Co (the same as the late Emperor of Germany, and m like him, thank God, I am still slive) performed at St. Barthelomew's Hospital, no one could possibly have had a more violent cough; it was so had at times that it quite exhausted me. The muons, which was very

The above speaks for itself. From strict inquiry appears that the benefit from using Keating's Cough Lozengon is understated. The operation was a specially severe one, and was performed by the specialist, Dr. H. T. Butlin, of St. Bartholomew's H. A. Petersen & Co. Hospital. Since the operation the only means of relief is the use of these Lozenges. So successful are Pekin, British str., 1), Matthews, Feb. 9, they that one affords immediate benefit, although Malcampe & Co from the nature of the case the threat irritation is Pasadag & Co UNRIVALLED TESTIMONY. ATLANTIC LINERS AND BROKEN

SHAFTS.

AN INTERVIEW WITH ENGINE BUILDERS. The breakdown of two Atlantic liners, in one week, in consequence of the fracture of their propeller-shafts, has naturally ourself some sensatien, and many inquiries as to the why and the wherefore of such accidents. To satisfy this natural curiosity a representative of the Pall Mall Gazette called at the well-known engineering works of Mesers, Mands'av. Sons, and Field (Limited), and in conversation with one of the directors-Mr. John Sampson-obtained some information as to the manufacture of shafts and the grusss of their broakage.

"First, Mr. Sampson." our representative asked, " will von tell me of what material shafts are made, and how they are made?"-" In the old days," Mr. Sampson replied, "shults were made of wrought iron, but of late the material used is forged stool. Roughly there are three The difficulty is to senure a sound core, for while the outside skin may be thoroughly good the centre may be rotten. The advantage of the hollow shaft is that the stent is pounded both inside and outside, and the ours being removed the part which is most liable to fault is got rid Whitworth, I believe, first introduced the system and it is now adopted at several works. It gives more stron th fir the weight, a coust-deration which commended it for adoption i "Is it impossible to prevent a flaw or a weak spot in a shaft?"-" You cannot be absolutely certain of anything that is made, but the great est care is taken to prevent any flaw. The forging, as a rule; is most carefully done, and when the shaft is turned it is examined most minutely, so that if there is any appearance of weakness on the surface it is detected, and the whole thing is rejected. The tasts as to strongth prescribed by the Board of Trade and the Admiralty are most severe. I have seen a shaft which cost £600 sent back to the maker because some slight flaw was found in it." "There is no attempt at talsa economy in the matter of shifts?"- Not at all. It is not a case of outting down the out Shipping companies will pay any reasonable price to get a

"Now, why does a shaft break?"-" The breakage may be due to some inherent defect or it may be caused by the sudden strain of the engines racing when the propeller is shot out of the sea. I think, however, if the shaft has been obtained from thoroughly reliable makers, the
